

FORECAST FAIR OF CITY OF FLAME

Night Effects at Exposition Tested on Transportation Palace Before Committees.

FORMED DAZZLING PICTURE.

Officials Spend From Noon Till Nightfall on the Grounds Viewing Progress of Installation Work in Buildings.

Residents of Cahanne and surrounding districts, who looked out after dinner yesterday evening towards the World's Fair grounds, rubbed their eyes and looked again before they were sure that they were not gazing at some beautiful mirage or dreaming some dream of fairy splendour.

The sight that met the eyes of those who gazed towards the Exposition site yesterday evening just at nightfall was the beautiful outlines of a noble palace in lines of white flame. For just a few brief minutes it lasted, when, like some mirage seen in the desert, it faded into the darkness.

The building thus projected in living fire against the night shadows was the Palace of Transportation and the occasion was the testing of the exterior lighting of the building according to the plans prepared by the Department of Electrical and Mechanical Design. The test was made for the benefit of the Executive and Grounds and Building Committees which spent the afternoon in a joint tour of inspection of the grounds and buildings of the fair.

The trip was commenced early in the afternoon, following luncheon at the grounds. Every chief of an exhibit department was at his post in the building where the exhibits in his department are to be installed shortly. The special purpose of the inspection tour was to observe for themselves what work is being done in the way of installation for the exhibits, and the department chiefs were there to explain the work.

COMMITTEE WELL PLEASED. The committees were well pleased with what they saw, and spent the entire afternoon going from building to building and observing the busy scenes in them. It was nightfall before the last palace had been visited and the committees proceeded towards the Transportation palace to observe the test of the lighting effects on its exterior.

For days the electricians have been engaged in placing incandescent lamp bulbs in the sockets on the facade. The plan for the exterior lighting of the building on the grounds is to furnish illumination for the grounds and at the same time to bring out, in a striking way, the graceful and salient points in the architecture of the buildings.

As the current was turned on last night and the bulbs began to glow, at first with a soft light, picking out in lines of flame the beautiful outlines of Chief Masque's architectural masterpiece, the committees were enthusiastic in their admiration of the scene. The sight of the monster building, standing out as though built of fire, with its state-rooms, pylons, entrances and corridors, or rather masses of dazzling light, formed a most striking picture.

The effect as seen from a distance was even more beautiful as the white, hard glare of the lamps was reflected by the intervening walls of the buildings in shadow gave the whole picture the effect of some vision.

Territory's exhibit. Few persons not acquainted with the Alaskan Indians are aware that those poles are no less than the history of a family or a sort of literal family tree.

One pole often represents as many as four or five generations. One man may be a great hunter. His image is carved on the pole as a hunter. An Indian's greatness depends on his prowess as a hunter. On the poles are carved fishers, hunters and trappers. As generation follows generation and the log becomes full of carving or "history," then another log is set up. The logs are always placed in front of the man's dwelling. According to Mr. Fales, the Commissioner who brought down the Indians, the old barbarous customs are rapidly disappearing from among the Alaskan Indians. Unlike a great many of our own red men the Alaskan Indians are anxious to have a white man's help in their country.

"In the wilder parts of Alaska," says Mr. Fales, "it is interesting to see groups of Indians coming to a white man's camp in the evening to study the stranger's customs and his language."

BURNS COTTAGE PLANS APPROVED.

Ground-Breaking Ceremonies for Scottish Bard's Home at World's Fair to Be Held Soon.

Plans for the Burns Cottage to be built at the World's Fair were approved yesterday at a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Burns Cottage Association, which was held at the fair grounds.

The plans were drawn by Architect J. M. Dunham. Bids for the work will be opened and the contract let by the committee to-morrow.

A new site has been assigned by the World's Fair for the cottage and work will be started upon it immediately after the letting of the contract. The cottage will be completed before the opening of the fair.

The plans for the building provide for an exact reproduction of the Scottish bard's famous cottage at Ayr, and the poet's bedroom, kitchen, the "byre" and the barn, just as they were when Burns lived and penned his immortal verse.

The Executive Committee at its meeting to-morrow will fix the day for the formal ground-breaking for the cottage. It is the intention to make this an event for Scotland in St. Louis and the United States and the skirl of the pipes will be heard on that day.

POSTPONE TEXAS DEDICATION. Ceremony Will Be Held in April Instead of March.

The dedication of the Texas building at the World's Fair has been postponed from March 29 to April 28, because of the impossibility of completing the building by the first date. The decision was made by the Executive Committee of the Texas Commission at Dallas yesterday, according to a dispatch received from that city.

The postponement of the dedication ceremony will also give the Board of Commissioners, which has charge of the decoration of the interior of the building, more time in which to complete its work and to arrange the entertainment program for the term of the Exposition.

The Board of Lady Commissioners will meet at Houston April 11.

ARRANGE MEMORIAL EXERCISES.
Committee Visits Fair Relative to Services in Festival Hall May 30.

The Committee on Arrangements for Memorial Day exercises, to be held Monday, May 30, in Festival Hall on the World's Fair grounds, called yesterday afternoon at the headquarters of the Ceremonies Committee of the fair to arrange for the exercises.

The committee consisted of Messrs. Charles F. Vogel, Henry Fairbank and F. A. Johann. They were accompanied by General John W. Noble, who is to be Grand Marshal of the parade to be held on that day.

The Grand Marshal for the Sunday exercises, May 30, is General John W. Noble, who has served in that capacity for many years. On that day the graves of the soldiers who fell in the wars of the United States will be decorated.

WILL START SWEDISH BUILDING.
Pavilion, Erected in That Country, Now at Fair in Sections.

Work on the erection of the Swedish pavilion at the World's Fair will be commenced to-morrow morning. A. J. Norren of Stockholm, Sweden, who will have charge of the construction of the pavilion, arrived in St. Louis yesterday.

All of the material for the building, which was shipped to St. Louis in sections, is now on the fair grounds and the work of erecting it will take but comparatively little time.

Mr. Norren, after the building is up, will spend several months traveling over the United States studying American architecture. Three carloads of Swedish exhibits arrived on the grounds yesterday.

LAD DREW PISTOL IN COURT. Boy Arraigned for Threatening to Kill Playmate.

New York, March 26.—The court officers in the Children's Court yesterday pulled down the shades and one of them whispered to Justice Olmsted that the case to be tried was a most serious one.

"Have you the prisoner in irons?" inquired Justice Olmsted solemnly. A dozen boys in a corner huddled closer together and began to cry. Two weeping mothers occupying orchestra seats in the third row wept loudly. The court officer in charge of the youngsters picked out a comely lad and dragged him forward.

"What's your name?" inquired Justice Olmsted, and the boy at the bar replied Ormsby Edwards. He said he was 14 years old and resided with his parents in a flat at No. 68 West One Hundred and Forty-seventh street.

The justice told him he was charged with sending a threatening letter to a 14-year-old Willie Hensell, who resides in the flat above the Edwards family. The letter was read by the justice, who asked what the skull and cross bones on it meant.

Young Edwards answered: "Death." "Why did you want to kill Willie?" asked the justice, but Ormsby did not reply.

The Hensell boy was called up, and said that Ormsby Edwards had sent the letter to him, and later lay in wait for him in the hallway of their house and scared him by pointing a revolver at him.

Did you have a revolver?" asked the justice. "Yes," replied the Edwards boy, reaching for his pocket and producing a big revolver. He drew it out of the system at once, and refused to say where he got it, and began to snivel. Justice Olmsted delivered a severe lecture telling him he would keep him beyond the temptation of Indian fight literature.

ADOPT TURBINES FOR FAST LINERS.

Cunard Company Decides to Install New Propelling Power on Its Ships.

THOROUGH TESTS COMPLETED

Expect to Build New Steamers of 28,000 Tons Gross That Will Cross the Atlantic in Five Days.

SPECIAL BY CABLE TO THE ST. LOUIS REPUBLIC AND THE NEW YORK HERALD, London, March 26.—(Copyright, 1904.)

—Great interest has been aroused by the announcement of the Cunard Company's decision to adopt turbines in the new fast steamers which are to be built under an agreement with His Majesty's Government and which will have a gross tonnage of 28,000 and are expected to travel at a speed of twenty-five knots an hour and cross the Atlantic in about five days. It will be remembered that a committee was appointed last September to assist the directors in arriving at a conclusion. At the time of the formation of this committee only a small amount of information was obtainable as to the relative economy of the turbine engines and the reciprocating engines doing similar duty and developing equal power. The work of the committee has been, therefore, largely experimental.

Two series of comparative tests have been carried out, one on shore, at the Neptune Bank station of the Newcastle Upon Tyne Company and the other afloat, with the steamship Arundel and Brighton on the New Haven Deep-sea route. Both ashore and afloat, the relative economy of the different types of engines was determined by the steam consumption per unit of power.

SUCCESSFUL TESTS. At the Neptune Bank the tests were made with reciprocating and turbine engines running at various proportions, the full power and full speed output of electricity being recorded in each case. The speed of the turbine engines fitted on shore with two steam engines was comparable with the Arundel and the Brighton having turbine engines and the Arundel reciprocating engines.

The two series were first run side by side from New Haven to Dieppe and back, one of them being on the ordinary service, thus eliminating the possibility of errors due to the variations of weather and tide. Afterward, with the Brighton running at different speeds, tests were carried out in the Solent.

Not only have the directors of the Cunard Company had to give much consideration to the question of the adoption of turbines, as against reciprocating engines, but the design and dimensions of the new ships also required much thought and attention. Most exhaustive and careful tests were made, and the result was a decision in favor of the turbines, and every point in connection with their size and weight in every detail has been gone over many times.

The company is not yet in a position to make an announcement in this regard, but the directors hope shortly to state that the design and dimensions of the steamers have been placed for the building of the vessels.

Catarrh Ends in Consumption

Thousands of Cases of Tuberculosis and Consumption of the Lungs Are Caused by Catarrh of the Head and Throat Being Neglected.

TO-NI-TA Cures Catarrh and Prevents Consumption.

In cases of catarrh of the head and throat, if the germs are allowed to enter the lungs, the tissues soon become diseased and the wasting process sets in. You should be careful, and if the slightest trace of catarrh of the head or throat shows itself, give it out of the system at once, and with TO-NI-TA. It disinfests the lungs and kills the germs. It heals the membrane and drives the poisons out of the system, as it is a mild laxative and strong tonic. It stimulates and enriches the blood, builds up the system, and cures disease and prolongs life.

Discovery of the age. It is composed of the vital principles of the most powerful healing herbs known to medicine, and is absolutely free from cocaine or any harmful substance. It is a powerful tonic and builds up the system, and cures disease and prolongs life. It will cure any case of catarrh of the head, throat, lungs, stomach, kidneys, bladder and female organs. Most so-called female weakness is caused by catarrh of the head, throat, lungs, stomach, kidneys, bladder and female organs. It can be quickly and permanently cured by TO-NI-TA.

MR. A. THOMAS LAURINA, 1254 Fulton St., Brooklyn, N. Y., writes: "I suffered from chronic catarrh of the head and throat, the result of a severe cold, and it was very difficult to breathe. I tried many remedies, but received no relief until I took TO-NI-TA, when my cough ceased and he was restored to perfect health."

He writes: "I have received so much benefit from the use of TO-NI-TA that I consider it almost a duty to tell you about it."

"Two years ago I contracted a severe cold which hung on in spite of all my efforts to rid myself of it. It stayed with me all through the winter and in the spring left me with a bad case of catarrh of the head and throat. I tried local applications, but they did not help. I then took TO-NI-TA, and the result was a complete cure. I had a dull headache almost all the time and a cough that was so persistent as to be a considerable worry."

"After months of suffering and experimenting with various remedies, a friend advised me to try TO-NI-TA. I was not very anxious
